

PRESS RELEASE

EADA Business School maintains its privileged position for training in international finance

Barcelona, 12th June 2023. The International Master in Finance at EADA Business School has maintained its position as one of the best schools in the world for postgraduate training in finance at number 33, as published today by the Financial Times in its Master in Finance Ranking 2023.

The yearlong programme is aimed at recent graduates who wish to pursue a career in the finance sector. According to Programme Director, Jaume Bonet and as highlighted in the ranking, “the high percentage of employability (97%) three months after graduation and the career progression of our participants are determining factors in the success of our master’s programme”.

To be included in the ranking, the Financial Times requires all schools to be EQUIS or AACSB accredited.

The FT ranking is based on various qualitative and quantitative parameters such as graduate salaries 3 years after completing the course, the employability of participants 3 months after finishing the programme, the percentage of international students and female participants and the number of faculty members who hold a PhD.

EADA Business School was founded in 1957 by a group of entrepreneurs and professionals as an ideologically and economically independent institution. In addition to appearing in the international rankings of the Financial Times and The Economist, it holds the EQUIS accreditation from the EFMD (European Foundation for Management Development) and the AMBA, which recognises the quality of MBA programmes.