Barcelona, 11th September 2023. The Master in Management programme at EADA Business School maintains its position as part of a select group of top international programmes, at number 44, according to the ranking published today by the leading British newspaper the Financial Times.

According to Programme Director, Antony Poole, after so many years “real success comes from maintaining and consolidating the school's position in a global market that is becoming increasingly competitive”.

The ranking is based on various parameters including faculty, diversity, financial investment, career progression, salary and employability three months after completing the programme. The Master in International Management is designed for recent graduates and aims to help them enter the job market and boost their careers.

To be included in the ranking, the Financial Times requires all schools to be EQUIS or AACSB accredited.

EADA Business School Barcelona was founded in 1957 by a group of entrepreneurs and professionals as an ideologically and economically independent institution. In addition to appearing in the international rankings of the Financial Times and The Economist, it holds the EQUIS accreditation from the EFMD (European Foundation for Management Development) and the AMBA, which recognises the quality of MBA programmes.
